

UNCSW 2018

The 62nd United Nations Commission on the Status of Women takes place between March 12th and 24th. Mothers' Union are sending a delegation of members and staff to New York to speak and consult on this year's theme: "Empowering Rural Women"

The issues facing rural women range from isolation and poverty to lack of infrastructure and representation. Many of our members around the world live and work in rural settings, supporting communities and campaigning for problems to be addressed.

This is why it's so important they are given the chance to speak up at the highest level. You can find out more about our delegation, the UNCSW and our official statement on our website.
